

PETER M. FRY DEAD; HAD LONG BEEN ILL

Former Manager of Jefferson Hotel Passes Away at His Home Here.

WELL-KNOWN HOTEL MAN

Honored by National Association, and First President of Virginia Organization.

P. M. FRY.

Peter Merryweather Fry, former manager of the Jefferson Hotel and one of the best known hotel men in the South, died yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at his residence, 491 East Franklin Street. For more than two years he had been suffering from stomach trouble. During the last two weeks he had been confined to his home, and though his condition was known to be serious, there seemed no immediate danger until a short while before his death. The funeral will take place from Holy Trinity Church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Fry was born at Kolner Springs, Va., fifty-five years ago. His education was received at the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College, now the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, from which he was graduated with the class of 1875. There he did well in his classes and was distinguished as an athlete, being captain of the basketball team and prominent in other departments of athletics.

LONG MANAGER OF JEFFERSON.

Before going into the hotel business, he was for some time in the insurance business. He gave that up to become chief clerk at White Sulphur Springs, where he remained for many years. When the Jefferson was built, he came here as chief clerk, and held the position for two years. He was then made manager, and continued in that capacity up to two years ago with greatest success. The condition of his health then made it necessary for him to resign and take a rest.

It was during the administration of Mr. Fry that the Jefferson was destroyed by fire on the night of March 29, 1909. Shortly before midnight when the fire was discovered Mr. Fry and J. M. Booker, the present chief clerk, turned in the alarm, and the accompanying firemen, the house detective, aroused the guests and got them safely out of the burning building. At that time Mr. Fry's family occupied quarters in the house.

When it was known that all the guests had escaped, Mr. Fry and Mr. Booker returned to the office to save the money and valuables in the safe. While they were behind the desk, which was shielded in a measure by the balcony above, the roof of the main lobby fell in with a crash, but they escaped with all the valuables and without being hurt.

After the fire Mr. Fry worked unceasingly for the restoration of the hotel, and though connected with it only in the capacity of manager, was considered one of the chief factors in bringing the house back to more than its former magnificence.

Mr. Fry went to the country for several months, and after that seemed to have regained his strength. He then returned and completed his second term as chief clerk of the hotel, his position, he held until the season closed last year. Returning to his home here, his health grew steadily worse.

HONORED BY NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

Three years ago Mr. Fry was elected to the first vice-presidency of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association, the national hotel organization, at the annual convention held in Saratoga, N. Y., an honor never before accorded to a Southern member of the association. He was one of the organizers of the Virginia Hotel Men's Association, and was the first president of the organization. When the Virginia and North Carolina Associations were consolidated two years ago, he was one of the prime movers and completed his second term as president only a short while ago. He was also prominent in the Masons and the Elks here.

Mr. Fry leaves a wife and three children—P. M. Fry, Jr., and Virginia and Eleanor Fry.

STORMS CONTRACT UP FOR HEARING

Trafford's Report Will Guide Committee on Question of Rescinding It.

DELAY IS COSTLY TO CITY

Ordinance Committee Called to Go Into New Playground Plan.

A special meeting of the Council Committee on Electricity will be held to-night at 8 o'clock to receive a report from Engineer Trafford and a subcommittee as to the advisability of rescinding a contract with Storms & Company, of Newark, for constructing the overhead distributing system of the Municipal Electric Plant. Chairman John J. Lynch said last night that unless there were some guarantee that the contractor would finish the work more expeditiously than has appeared up to this time, he would favor revoking the contract outright, and averting the possibility of completing the plant. Even with the delay of awarding a new contract, which would have to be approved by the Council and entail several months of red tape, Mr. Lynch said it would still be a good thing to announce to contractors that hereafter the city will expect them to live up to their agreements. The Storms contract was to have been completed on November 7 last, and according to the report of Engineer Trafford the delay is costing the city $4,000 per month for street lighting, since it is both operating its own plant and also paying the bill of the Virginia Railway and Power Company.

Mr. Trafford has suggested as an alternative, that instead of the long delay, resulting from awarding new bids and having the Council approve the award of a new contract, that he be authorized to employ men and buy material to meet the lines.

The Council Committee on Streets will meet to-night at 8 o'clock to consider the application of the Richmond Power Corporation for a franchise.

A subcommittee from the Council Committee on Streets, having under consideration a resolution asking the amount of compensation to be paid the city by the Virginia Railway and Power Company for operating cars over the Free Bridge will meet on Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Several members of the old James River Bridge Commission have been asked to be present.

The Lunch Investigation committee will meet to-morrow night to work out its plan for organizing the City Engineer's department. The Committee on Ordinance, Charter and Reform will meet the same night. That committee has several bills before it, including a bill for the Finance Committee, has tried for five months to get a hearing on the ordinance reducing the fees of the City Collector, but the matter has been postponed indefinitely. The committee also when several delegations were present in the interests of a new plan for operating municipal playgrounds.

On Thursday night the Committee on Water will try for a fourth time to get a permanent appropriation of funds for the purchase of the old James River Bridge. The Finance Committee will hold the last of the budget hearing on Thursday night, the chief item yet to be gone into being the Street Department.

On Friday night the Committee on Streets meets in regular session at 8 o'clock, and the Committee on St. John's Burying ground will meet at the same hour.

BUSINESS MEN TO DISCUSS PLANS

Chamber Committee Ready to Outline Scheme for Manufacturing Exhibit.

Vice-President T. M. Carrington, of the Chamber of Commerce, has called together for to-morrow afternoon all the manufacturers of the city, for the purpose of making arrangements for the establishment of the proposed manufacturers' exhibit here. Since the exhibit was first proposed some time ago, a great deal of interest has been taken in it, and it is expected that the attendance will be large. There are in the city, according to the Whitty report, published on January 1, 1,782 manufacturers, employing 32,500 hands, carrying a capital of $25,073,510, with annual sales amounting to $90,251,478. Tentative plans for the establishment of the exhibit have been in the hands of the business enterprise committee, of which Mr. Carrington is chairman, for some time, and the recommendations will be placed before the meeting to-morrow night. It is thought that in general they will be approved. With this part of the detail settled, the committee probably will go into the question of obtaining a suitable site in the central business section of the city. If the plans are carried through, a location will be selected in the most accessible portion of the city, and all articles manufactured here by concerns that are members of the Chamber of Commerce will be placed there. The idea is that prospective buyers will be enabled to look over the city's products as completely and satisfactorily, without the loss of time that they now experience in going from one factory to the other. Each concern will have a representative in the house to take care of its customers.

Not all of the manufacturers listed by Mr. Whitty are now members of the chamber, but it is expected that the successful establishment of the exhibit will offer them a still greater inducement to become members.

Charged With Taking Papers.

Wallace Jones, Hebrew and Coster Jew, colored, boys, were arrested yesterday morning on a charge of stealing several copies of The Times-Dispatch.

ALLAN ANXIOUS TO IMPROVE SERVICE

Still Trying to Get Bulk of Northern Mail in Time for 5:15 P. M. Train.

NEW BANK HOURS MAY HELP

Earlier Closing Expected to Relieve Congestion in Dispatching Room.

Postmaster Allan, who has long urged banks and business houses to send their afternoon mail to the post-office at an earlier hour so that it can be dispatched on the northbound train leaving here at 5:15, believes that at least some of the congestion will be relieved after February 1, when the banks will close an hour earlier than heretofore. Postmaster Allan has put forth every effort to give the public a shift-edged service. He has watched the fact that thousands and thousands of letters are thrown in at the last moment for Northern points. And he has figured that if it could be received in time to leave town at 5:15 instead of 5:20 P. M., the service could be still more improved.

Over 100,000 Pieces a Day.

More than 100,000 pieces of first-class mail are handled every day by the clerks—about one letter for every man, woman and child in Richmond. Sixty per cent. of this amount comes in a lump—between 6 and 9 P. M. Northern, Southern and Western is mixed up together. All of it must be packed, sorted and distributed to the different routes. Almost every afternoon the 5:15 train for the North, which reaches New York at 4 A. M., goes out light, so far as first-class mail from Richmond is concerned. The bulk of the mail, which must be hurriedly worked for the 5:30 train, all of which is transferred to a regular mail train in Washington, and which reaches New York often too late for delivery by carriers on their first rounds. The thing that worries the post-office clerks is that much of the local mail sent out by the evening train could go just as well at 5:15, if office boys and messengers were willing to make a couple of trips to the post-office.

A number of business people to whom Mr. Allan has explained the situation have ordered their clerks to have at least a part of the mail ready for the bulk of the mail for the 5:30 train, all of which is transferred to a regular mail train in Washington, and which reaches New York often too late for delivery by carriers on their first rounds.

The thing that worries the post-office clerks is that much of the local mail sent out by the evening train could go just as well at 5:15, if office boys and messengers were willing to make a couple of trips to the post-office.

Indeed, it might be said that Miss Clay was largely responsible for the great interest aroused in the suffrage question when it was first taken up actively by the women of Richmond.

The movement in Kentucky was recently discussed in Lexington, where Miss Clay made a speech and obtained for the women of the diocese a promise from Bishop Lewis W. Burton that their petition for equal rights would have a full and free hearing before the council when it meets at Frankfort. The women declare that they pay dues and pew rent and are attendants at service the same as men, and should have the same rights. Miss Clay, as president of the Kentucky Equal Rights Association, has won the endorsement of the Kentucky Federation of Labor, which has just closed its annual session, for an amendment to the State Constitution by which women are to be granted suffrage in Kentucky.

Big Plans in Virginia.

It is pretty well understood in Richmond that the League of Suffrage of Virginia will have representative appear before the General Assembly next year to ask for the adoption of laws which will grant the women some of the rights they have been seeking. Exactly how the league will proceed is explained in detail, although lawyers are at work preparing bills to be presented in both houses. In the meantime, a number of prominent speakers will be brought to Virginia to elaborate the passage of laws for the active members of the league. Yesterday that the women of Virginia are not demanding the right to vote in primary elections, the Legislature not being clothed with power to bring about that startling innovation.

But there are rights which can be granted us under the Constitution, she said, and our lawyers will be prepared to fight for laws which can and which I think will be enacted. We are not seeking the impossible, but the women of Virginia are in a position to force the passage of laws for the amelioration of the human race and our sex in particular.

Spanish Class at Y. M. C. A.

A Spanish class will be organized to-morrow night at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A., where it is proposed to give a course of instruction in the Spanish language, with the idea of equipping men to use in business and commerce. The class will be under the direction of Juan Ortiz, of Spain, and E. D. Torres, of Cuba, both students of the Presbyterian Seminary.

Two Girls Arrested.

Catherine and Gonda Robinson, white girls, thirteen years old, were arrested yesterday on charges of truancy.

Walter, twelve, twenty-two years old, was arrested on a charge of being a vagrant.

Although his condition was regarded for more than a week as most desperate, Rev. Robert W. Forsyth, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, has rallied remarkably, and his physicians believe that if nothing unforeseen happens he will shortly be restored to his normal strength again. He was not so well on Saturday night, but yesterday there was a slight change for the better, and his family and friends are hopeful that he has passed the critical stage of his illness.

Mr. Forsyth is one of the most popular and highly esteemed ministers in Richmond. In nearly all of the churches yesterday prayers were offered for his speedy recovery. It was said at his residence that while his improvement was acquiescent of the murder of Clara it is believed that he is well out of danger.

WOMEN SEEKING VOICE IN CHURCH

Miss Clay Leads Fight for Full Rights With Laymen in Diocesan Council.

HELPED CAUSE IN VIRGINIA

Members of Suffrage League Preparing to Storm Legislature Next January.

MISS LAURA CLAY.

Members of the Equal Suffrage League of Virginia are particularly interested in news from Kentucky which relates to the fact that the women of the Episcopal Diocese of that State are demanding that they be admitted to full rights with laymen of the church in the Diocesan Council. They have selected Miss Laura Clay, of Lexington, president of the Kentucky Equal Rights Association and auditor of the National Woman Suffrage Association, to lead the campaign.

Miss Clay, who is a sister of Mrs. S. Dabney Crenshaw, of Richmond, took an active part in the organization of the Equal Suffrage League some months ago on the occasion of her visit to this city. She talks to the league showed that she had intimate knowledge of plans and scope and objects, and her advice was eagerly sought when it came to dealing with important matters affecting the welfare of the association.

Helped to Form League Here.

Indeed, it might be said that Miss Clay was largely responsible for the great interest aroused in the suffrage question when it was first taken up actively by the women of Richmond.

WHYTEHALL HAD RICHMOND LIST

Gave One Banker Same Secret Rating That He Bestowed on Dr. Lyman Abbott.

BEAT WALDORF-ASTORIA

Queer Lot of Printed Junk Satisfies Police Man Was a Crook.

Major Werner admitted yesterday that while he had to examine the personal effects of many crooks, second-story men, unfortunately, and the like, he has never yet seen such an assortment of truck as was packed away in the satchel of the stranger who died here on Wednesday and who passed as Eno Whytehall. The police are not certain whether the man's name was really Whytehall, but they are convinced that he was a crook. His possessions bear out that theory.

Whytehall had what might be called a card index system of people. For instance, on one slip the names of Roger A. Pryor and Dr. Lyman Abbott appear, with a mystic mark opposite each. But under Dr. Abbott's name is the word good, evidently meaning that the doctor has been in the habit of helping those who are in distress or who are in need of a friend. But of far more interest is the stranger's Richmond list.

Rated With Dr. Abbott.

Exactly how and where he got the names is not explained, but two bank presidents are put down first, with those same mystic marks. One must have been regarded as a good friend, for the same sign which he gave, Dr. Abbott is given the Richmond banker. And there is one little slip which a person seldom carries away from a hotel as a souvenir. It is an order card for the Waldorf-Astoria for luncheon. The card, with which he selected his food, showed that he was a connoisseur. He picked the most delicate food, and then while the waiter's back was turned, he slipped out of the cafe and carried the ticket with him. Mere possession of the ticket would not have been enough to get him into the Waldorf. It might also indicate that he was a member of the New Willard, in Washington, to know that Whytehall carried off some of his most delicately prepared soap, with the hotel's name boldly stamped upon it.

Pictures of Children.

Whytehall's assortment of photographs was unique. There were mostly of children—little girls, about two years old, taken without clothing or any kind. Many of these pictures were torn from frames, with nothing to indicate their identity. One of his memoranda showed that Whytehall did not mind crime, another related to wild-cat mining properties. Another told of children who were cruelly treated in institutions. Then there are dozens of envelopes, thick enough to carry enough to require 6 cents postage for mailing, crammed full of other newspaper clippings, all relating to crime.

Found with the other papers was the printed program of a music entertainment given in New York last year. Whytehall had written "My Daughter." The name was heavily underlined. Major Werner has written to the school to see what he can find. Whytehall had more clippings than clothes.

Got One Patent.

Nothing was learned yesterday about the mysterious stranger. Major Werner got a letter from Munn & Co., patent attorneys of Washington, saying that all they knew about a patent was that he had obtained a patent through that firm, and that he had stated his home was in Norwich, Conn.

The police have learned enough, however, to satisfy them that Whytehall, or whatever his name was, was not the character of man who would be invited here by any commercial organization. He will probably go down in the records as a crook.

R. C. WOODALL ARRESTED

Man Recently Shot Picked Up on Charge of Vagrancy.

After repeated requests that some action be taken by the police against him on account of his irregular mode of living, R. C. Woodall, who some months ago was shot while living in suspicious circumstances, was arrested yesterday by Acting Detective Atkinson on the charge of being a vagrant. Woodall was arrested in a house on Mayo Street, from which he had been warned to keep away.

Woodall was stated to be twenty-two, had not been at work for two months, but seems always to be plentifully supplied with money. His wife, who is said to be working to support herself and two children, is suing him for divorce.

Woodall was bailed by a friend for his appearance in Police Court this morning. He attempted afterwards to interview a police commissioner in his own behalf, but when the nature of the case was made known to the police commissioner, the alleged vagrant was turned promptly from his door.

RAILROAD FOLK IN TOWN TO-DAY

One Hundred Officials Come by Special Train on Their Way Home From Florida.

One hundred members of the National Association of Railway Agents, which has recently been in session at Tampa, Fla., will spend the day here today as the guests of local members of the association and other railway officials. The visitors will arrive in a special train over the Atlantic Coast Line this morning at 9 o'clock. Instead of leaving the train at the Byrd Street Station, the party will be switched over to the Chesapeake and Ohio viaduct and will alight at the Main Street Station. At the station they will be met by a delegation of about twenty local railroad men, headed by E. D. Hotchkiss, of the Chesapeake and Ohio, chairman of the reception committee; Warren P. Taylor, of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac; Irvin Weisiger, of the Virginia Seaboard Company; and Colonel Henry M. Boykin, of the Seaboard Air Line. Colonel Boykin, as chairman of the entertainment committee, will have charge of the party for the day.

A special special train will meet the visitors at the Main Street Station for a trip over the city. The first stop will be made at the tobacco factory of Larus Brothers & Co., where they will inspect the factory and be entertained by a concert by the negro workers.

To Hear Henry's Speech.

From there the cars will go to St. John's Church, where the historic address of Patrick Henry to the House of Burgesses will be heard from the cussation. The train on which they are now which was occupied by the famous orator when he made the "give me liberty or give me death" speech. On the return from the East End a short stop will be made at the Capitol; then the train will go to the Hotel, and back to the Jefferson Hotel.

Arriving there, luncheon will be served in the auditorium. Governor William Hodges Mann will welcome the association on behalf of the State, and Mayor David Crockett Richardson for the city. Business Manager William T. Dabney, of the Chamber of Commerce, will tell them pertinent things about the city and its advantages. Incidentally, he will invite any of them who contemplate changing their places of abode, with the view of bettering their conditions, to make Richmond their homes. As the train is held at the Hotel, Mr. Miller, with his colored quartet, will give them fifteen minutes of Old Virginia melody.

The delegation leaves at 7 o'clock over the Chesapeake and Ohio for Cincinnati. The train on which they are traveling consists of four Pullmans, two dining cars and two baggage cars.

Raid on Brook Avenue.

Rosa Lynch and Joan Warner, colored, were arrested early yesterday morning on a charge of running an objectionable resort at 624 Brook Avenue, and fourteen men were taken out by Bicycle Policemen Belton and Krenge who made the raid.

Jim Martin, colored, charged with interfering with the officers while they were placing the negroes in the patrol wagon, was also locked up.

WOMEN FALL INTO SWEARING HABIT

Minister Sorrowfully Admits That They Imitate Men in Use of Profanity.

Persons who treat sacred things with irreverence and who are profane were scored last night by Rev. W. G. Burch, pastor of the Asbury Church, South Richmond. The minister was convinced that profanity is a growing evil, though he admitted that to a large extent it is due to careless and indifferent speech.

"It is taboed in the business world and not tolerated in polite society," he said. "It is a recognized fact that no gentleman uses terms such as are so frequently heard in the streets and on the highways. Foul words are put into the mouth of our youth by men who have no reverence for the church or for those who worship God. But nevertheless this destructive evil is growing and fast corrupting the morals of our younger generation. Apparently there is no way to hinder the use of vile language except to demand plain, ordinary decency in men."

But the use of profanity is not confined alone to men. Many women have fallen into this dreadful habit, for I know that it is largely a habit and due to carelessness and indifference.

"Some men could not stop swearing if they were given untold riches. They have used it since boyhood, and this lifelong thoughtless disrespect of the Almighty forms a portion of their vocabulary which nothing could suppress."

"Most of the profane element with only slight exertion of will power can stop its tongue from shouting blasphemies upon the name of God, the church, the Sabbath and the Scriptures."

Spruill, nineteen years old, was arrested Saturday in Lunenburg county, and will be taken to Baltimore, where he must answer an indictment in the United States district Court charging him with attempting to defraud the government of taxes in connection with the manufacture of oleomargarine. The charge was brought to Richmond and locked up in the Henrico county jail. He will likely be taken to the
